Fighting for Steelworkers members' health and safety

The United Steelworkers union has always demonstrated strong leadership in defending the rights of injured workers, fighting for safe workplaces and advocating for those afflicted with industrial disease.

The District 6 Injured Workers Assistance Program has a proud history of Steelworkers leadership in health, safety and membership support.

The program offers quality representation to all Steelworkers fighting for their compensation claims. From our largest locals to our smallest bargaining units, the same robust support is available to all.

The Injured Workers Assistance Program is a key tool in ensuring your members get the assistance they need to fight the injustices of the workers' compensation system. I strongly urge your local to join today.

Expert representation for all compensation claims

Filing a compensation claim can be a daunting, complex process. Too often, injured workers fall victim to an adversarial system that thwarts their rights to fair compensation. Many have faced poverty and hardship as a result.

The USW District 6 Injured Workers Assistance Program defends the rights of injured Steelworkers by providing mentoring, consulting, training and expert representation for all compensation claims.

Our program has a proven track record of success – since 2009, more than 4,000 District 6 members have benefited from our services!
