

Solidarity
in Hard Times

Phone / Email ZAP

Hello, my name is _____. I live in your riding _____.

The COVID crisis has exposed how low wages, involuntary part-time employment and dangerous working conditions threaten us all. Black workers and workers of colour have paid a much bigger price for laws that fail to protect us.

At least 10 employer-paid, permanent paid sick days are crucial in non-pandemic times and more during a public health outbreak.

We also need a much higher minimum wage -- at least $20/hour, adjusted each year to keep up with inflation. Every single worker must be protected by the law, so we must close all loopholes and exemptions. Laws must also be enforced, with real penalties for employers who break them.

Workers can't wait any longer for leadership. I am fighting for decent work now.

My phone number is: _____

My mailing address is: _____.

Thank you.